"Trial by a Jury of His Peers" for Young Englishman

Historic Anglo-Saxon Right Claimed by Member of House of Lords

FIRST SINCE 1901
Entire Upper Chamber to Hear Accident Trial—Costs Taxpayers $30,000

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Eng.—An ancient privilege may be exercised late this month or early in December when Edward Southwell, Lord de Clifford, is tried by his fellow lords in the House of Lords on a charge of manslaughter, instead of being held into a criminal court like any ordinary Briton.

Lord de Clifford is accused of the manslaughter of Douglas Hopkins on last August 15, following a motor accident which occurred on a big road near London. When the case was called in the Old Bailey, one of the London criminal courts, the Recorder passed it up, saying that he had reported it to the Lord Chancellor as a major charge against a peer of the realm. The Lord Chancellor, in turn, appointed a committee of 18 members of the House of Lords to consider the proper methods of procedure "in order to bring Lord de Clifford to a speedy trial."

Lord de Clifford

Stipulations for Trial
Most of the members of this committee were lawyers. They reported in favor of quick trial. It would be held in the Royal Gallery in the Houses of Parliament. The Lord Chancellor, they recommended, should send a letter to every member of the House of Lords when the date of the trial was fixed, acquainting him with the facts and asking whether he intended to be present. All the peers attending are to wear their robes. The accused is to be seated within the bar.

Hope Marches 58 Yards for Touchdown Immediately After Getting Ball

By LEONARD ELLIS
Scoring almost at will, a hard-running Hope High School football team annihilated Beebe in the final home game here Friday night with a 53-to-0 victory. It was the ninth win of the season for Hope.

The Bobcat attack was led by Cargile, who played with an injured ankle. Cargile played half the game and scored four touchdowns. Bright followed closely with three touchdowns. McDaniel and Ponder scored one each.

Most of Hope's scoring resulted from sustained marches up and down the field. The Bobcats rolled up 33 first downs to three for the visitors. Only once was Hope forced to punt.

As soon as Hope got possession of the ball in the opening quarter the Bobcats marched 58 yards for a touchdown. McDaniel scoring with a plunge from the 8-yard line. Bright passed to Turner for the extra point.

A 35-yard pass from Bright to Turner put the Bobcats in scoring position a few minutes later. Barr and Bright drove to the one-yard line where Bright smashed the line for a touchdown. Barr plunged for extra point.

As the second quarter started Coach Hammons jerked Bright, Barr and McDaniel. Cargile, Ponder and Stroud took over the ball lugging duties and pushed over two markers before the half ended.

A 60-yard drive produced the first score in the second quarter. Ponder played five yards for the first one. Cargile raced around end for 15 yards for the second one, and then Cargile flipped a pass to Bright for the final marker.

Although the game was designated as a homecoming affair, the smallest crowd of the season attended. Miss Martha Ann Singleton reigned as homecoming queen. Attending here were: Misses Angie Lee Smith, Mary Jane Richards, Alice Kate Hutson and Phoebe Munn.

OBSERVING HOURS

Flat Denial Made That Williams' Store Was Open at 1 in Morning

Answering a charge made by N. P. O'Neal in yesterday's story that he saw the Jett Williams liquor store open at 1 o'clock last Tuesday morning, City Policeman F. B. Ward asked the newspaper Saturday to print the following statement:

"I am patrolman on the South Walnut street beat, where the Williams liquor store is located.

"Under the city ordinance liquor stores must close at 10 p. m. I make the rounds on my beat every hour throughout the night, paying particular attention to the liquor stores—and I have never seen one open after hours. This is true as regards last Monday night and Tuesday morning."

"I have been on the same beat for the last seven months.

"I have seen the Jett Williams liquor store open after legal hours only once in all that time, and that was about three months ago. Mr. Williams came downtown in his car with his family and looked up the police, asking them to accompany him to his place of business. He said he believed he had forgotten to lock his safe, and wanted to make sure about it."

"I personally entered the store with him—and we found the safe open. He looked it, and we left the premises together."

Jap Army at Grips With Own People

Desperate Political Battle Between Military and Civil Power

TOKIO, Japan—(AP)—Japan's minister of war and her foreign minister debated opposing views of autonomy of five provinces in North China before the cabinet Friday while Tokyo diplomats insisted the separatist dispute was "a matter of Chinese politics."

The war minister, Yoshiyuki Kawasima, urged acceptance of Japanese military views at a cabinet session which he heard the "report" of Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. General Kawasima had the obtained a half-hour audience with Premier Keisuke Okada.

Political experts, who said that the life of the present government might depend on the autonomy discussions, asserted the cabinet debate involved an issue between a strong army element which is insisting that plans for secession of North China be carried out, and civilian leaders who temperately have restrained the Japanese military in China from enforcing the separatist movement.

The foreign minister generally was expected to support a compromise suggested by Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese ambassador to China, which would permit the Nanking, or Chinese central government, to retain much authority in the disputed area. Ariyoshi recently conferred with Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese military overlord, to the annoyance of Japanese military leaders.

Great Clipper Plane Takes Off for Philippine, 2 Tons of Mail

ALAMEDA, Calif.—(AP)—Airmail service across the Pacific began Friday night as the first of a fleet of giant sky liners thundered westward, Manila bound.

The majestic China Clipper, loaded with nearly two tons of "first class" and official mail, gave thousands a thrill as it dipped under the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge cables in the takeoff. The cables are only about 300 feet above the water.

Spectators gasped at what appeared to be a daring feat. Pan-American Airways' officials said the huge flying boat made the dip for the benefit of watching school children.

The China Clipper started a mile run on the bay at 3:57 p. m. dipped under the bridge cables as skidded on through the Golden Gate. Anchored near the Golden Gate for the occasion was a slipper ship of other days, the Star of New Zealand.

Postmaster General James A. Farley announced that the China Clipper's mail load brought a profit of $47,000 to the Postoffice Department. The postoffice gross revenue from the 115,000 letters carried, he said, was $63,000 and the maximum cost $15,000.

The China Clipper's first scheduled stop is Honolulu, 2,400 miles away, which it is expected to reach in about 18 hours. Thereafter it will touch Midway, Wake and Guam islands en route to Manila.

Liquor, Sales Tax, Old Age Pensions Are Issues for '36

Breakdown of Circuit Courts Stresses Plight of the Counties

LIQUOR TAXATION

Revenue Goes to Fund for Old Age Pensions and the Unemployable

By O. F. HANES
Associated Press Staff Writer
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The liquor question, the sales tax, old age pensions and financial reform for counties will be the four big issues before the Arkansas electorate in next summer's election, unless veteran political observers miss their guess.

Local option elections called in more than a score of towns since liquor was legalized by the 1935 general assembly have resulted in overwhelming victories for the "drys" in all but two towns. One county—Howard—has voted to ban the sale of liquor and movements to obtain county-wide votes are under way in a number of others.

Sales Tax Issue
Although many officials believe that the opposition to the 2 per cent sales tax has decreased in recent months, it still is recognized as an outstanding issue. They concede that the sales tax would have been voted down if voted upon by the people last summer but claim that the public since has reacted favorably and recognizes the levy as an equitable one.

Aspirants for constitutional state offices will be called upon to make a definite stand on old age pensions. The neighboring states of Texas and Kentucky are among the latest to run up large majorities in favor of paying the pensions.

Several Arkansas counties are "in a bad way" financially. Circuit court commissioners have been eliminated through necessity as funds were not available for paying. Warrants of some counties are being sold at a discount for as low as 40 cents on the dollar.

Dry candidates will face the fire of the faction which claims that it is better for revenue from liquor sales to go to the state than into the pockets of the bootlegger. This has been the stand of Gov. J. Marion Futrell, expressed again recently when he answered criticism of the state Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Another Age Pension Function will advance is the fact that the liquor gallage tax goes to the State Welfare Commission for the payment of old age pensions and the care of unemployables, which include cripples and indigent widows.

Any candidate coming out on a platform calling for abolition of the sales tax will have a fight on his hands. Sixty-five per cent of the sales tax revenue is allocated to the common school fund. The school lobby is admittedly one of the strongest in the state.

The sales tax act was passed as an emergency measure to be in effect for two years but plans already are afoot under way to open a fight in the 1937 legislature to have the law remain on the statute books.

Amendments to allocate 35 per cent of the revenue directly for the payment of old age pensions and unemployable aid and to remove exemptions on certain foodstuffs have been suggested by legislators. The 35 per cent now goes to the general fund, with only $500,000 of it to be used by the welfare department during the biennium.

Educational leaders and pension advocates will insist that politicians favoring elimination of the sales tax advance some other plan for raising revenue to care for school children, the aged and those unable to work for a living.

The "Broke" Counties
State lawmakers were reluctant to express their views several weeks ago on a proposal that part of the sales tax moneys be allotted to counties to help them "get out of the hole." Governor Futrell asked for their opinions after receiving a report from a committee he had appointed. Only one legislator wrote that he favored such action.

But subsequently, the Lawrence county quorum court met and passed a resolution urging its representative in the assembly to vote for allocating 30 per cent of sales tax revenue for county needs.

The governor has recommended that the number of constitutional officers in counties be reduced and said he would draw up a constitutional amendment to submit to the people before retiring from office.

Suggestions often have been made that the number of counties be cut down from 75 to 25 or less.

Either proposal will bring on a battle of the ballots. Few county politicians would endorse either proposal, for adoption would mean a drastic reduction in the number of political "plums."

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

When a doctor tells you to take a teaspoonful of liquid medicine, he estimates that you will get an exact amount known as a fluid dram.

A dram in the metric system of measurement is four cubic centimeters. A thousand cubic centimeters approximate a quart.

Teaspoons vary greatly because of slight individual differences in depth and width. Not long ago a doctor measured a lot of teaspoons and found that they were from 3/4 cubic centimeters to 1 1/2 cubic centimeters.

If, therefore, a patient does not determine he has a fluid teaspoon, he can get from 1/4 to two times the quantity of drugs intended.

Fortunately, most doctors know this and if the exact quantity makes any serious difference, they are very careful to prescribe the medicine as measured out in a medicine glass, or if it is a very powerful medicine they will prescribe a number of drops.

Here again there are all sorts of opportunities for differences, because drops vary according to the nature of the liquid and the size of the medicine dropper.

Because the nature of the liquid medicine varies so greatly, the amount one gets will differ when they are all measured with the same medicine dropper.

The scientific word used in relation to a drop is a minim, and 15 minims are supposed to represent one cubic centimeter.

Since four cubic centimeters make one dram, 60 minims make a teaspoonful, but actually 15 minims of some medicines will make an amount equal to 39 drops and 15 minims of other medicines will equal 19 drops.

Fifteen minims of chloroform will equal as much as 62 drops; 15 minims of alcohol will be around 40 drops; and 15 minims of castor oil will be around 19 drops.

People always ask whether they should swallow a tablet whole, chew it up, or break it into small pieces. Of course, it is best to break up a tablet if you want to get its effect promptly and without any irritation to the lining of the stomach. If the whole tablet is swallowed, it is likely to rest on some one spot in the stomach until it is dissolved.

But some tablets taste bad and are unpleasant to chew. These can be broken up and swallowed with a glass of water.

Because medicines may taste badly in certain cases, it is customary frequently to prescribe them in capsules. If a capsule is swallowed as it comes, it will take longer for the outer coating to dissolve.

Therefore, doctors frequently recommend that the top of the capsule be taken off. Then the half containing the drug may be put on the tongue and swallowed with a glass of water.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

With "The Twenties," Mark Sullivan brings to a close his great history of the present generation, "Our Times." This is the sixth and last volume in the series, and it is perfectly obvious that the six volumes are going to be a standard reference work for a great many years.

"The Twenties" in some ways exhibits Mr. Sullivan's virtues and weaknesses as an historian with equal force. As a political writer, he was on the inside of most of the post-war politics, and he can tell about it with complete authority and candor. On the other hand, as a partisan he is in this volume describing recent events, and his objectivity suffers.

The bulk of his book is devoted to a discussion of the Harding administration, and it makes surprisingly interesting reading.

Mr. Sullivan comes to the rescue of Harding's reputation. He presents him convincingly, as a completely honest, high-principled man whose tragedy was that he took a weakness for yielding to his friends into the one place where such a weakness is unendurable—the White House.

Harry Daugherty, too, is presented in a new light. He is not the villain of the piece, to Mr. Sullivan; instead, he is a man who honestly tried to shield Harding from the crooked and chiselers who swarmed about Washington after the inauguration, a man who reaped much undeserved blame.

For the rest, Mr. Sullivan offers his familiar review of our popular songs, novels, plays, movies and slang expressions and rounds out a very fine job of historical writing with an excellent, readable book.

Published by Scribner's, the book sells for $3.75.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

A mother called on the school principal. She was in a quandary over her daughter.

"What can I do?" she asked. "To teach Betty a sense of responsibility?"

The principal kept her eyes off the soft pink of her visitor's coat politely. The answer she thought was there. Too much money. Too many things done for the child at home. Too soft living—too much everything. But instantly she rejected the idea.

Here was a woman seriously disturbed about her twelve-year-old daughter. And she looked sensible too, and very, very human. The person under that expensive coat who bothered now to call on her would have bothered before this to see that her girl had some training.

"We can talk it over," she said kindly. "Has Betty ever had any responsibility at all?"

Daughter's Training Neglected
I'm afraid not. You see, well my mother-in-law and husband couldn't conceive of raising a child without a couple of nurses. We have traveled a good bit, too, and she had to be left. From babyhood everyone has rushed to do the things for her. But recently I sent the upstairs maid away and explained to Betty that she must keep her own room in order. I wish you could see it. But the worst of it is that, accustomed to order all her life, she doesn't seem to notice. Either that or else she'll suffer tortures rather than hang up a dress or make her bed herself."

"So it's money after all," said Miss Knox to herself.

"I have taken her out of private school and sent her here to see if you could do anything. I have heard of your success with girls. Besides, I want her to see how other girls have to do."

"Thank you. But I'll have to be honest. Not all other girls know the meaning of responsibility. There are many mothers who never allow their daughters to do anything at all, who are mere hand-maidens to their girls. Sometimes they come from the poorest families. It is a common expression, 'I want Mary to be a lady and never have to work as I have.'"

Work and Responsibility Related
"Is it too late at twelve to show a girl what it's all about?"

"No, I don't think so. But a sense of responsibility is closely allied to the work habit. I mean the habit of doing things because they should be done, whether one likes it or not; being inconvenienced, and all that. Looking away from self."

"Is there any way to bring it about?"

Well, yes. But it is a slow process. You cannot suddenly descend on the untrained child and saddle her with a dozen jobs she hates. That only turns her and makes her stubborn. But if you could think of something that combines both interest and work it would be a wedge that might widen."

"How about a dog of her own? She would have to wash him and exercise him regardless of weather."

A splendid idea. Her duties could be gradually increased without her suspecting. But I'm a great believer in the word MUST. I'd make Betty fix her room every day."

Twelve is rather late to encourage responsibility. It really begins at two when a child learns to put on his own shoes or put away a toy without being told.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

The holiday season, when you are full of Christmas spirit and carols ring through your head day and night, is an excellent time to remind yourself again that the loveliest kind of beauty shines from within.

You may have smooth skin, sparkling eyes and glossy hair, but unless there is a glowing warmth in your face, people will think of you as being neat and well-groomed—perhaps even pretty—but never as being truly beautiful.

When you are patting and creaming the worry lines which have etched themselves on your brow, and smoothing out the furrows from your nose to the corners of your mouth, ask yourself how they got there in the first place.

If you've been sick or had an unusual amount of trouble, they have been unavoidable, of course; but if thinking only of yourself all the time has put them there (and being self-centered will do it), it's quite another matter, and you ought to turn over a new leaf.

I know a woman—a very human person, not an angel in disguise at all—who every year gives Christmas gifts that the recipients don't realize they are getting at the time. Perhaps, unless they are keen observers, they never know at all. She gives them gifts of understanding and tolerance and kindness.

If she knows a writer who is discouraged about his job, she writes him a gracious little note the next time she reads a book or article that he has written. If she has been rude occasionally to someone who annoys her, she makes an effort to be more pleasant when she sees him. She tries to stop gossiping and saying unkind things about people with whom she works and plays. She manages to think more of others than of herself.

As a result of years of this kind of holiday giving, she has the kind of beauty that makes her truly lovely, and her presents really make others happier than arrays of knickknacks or even expensive gifts.

The Truth About Diet

YOU BURN CALORIES AT WORK

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

We measure food energy in terms of calories. A calorie is the amount of heat which would raise the temperature of 1000 grams of water one degree.

When a man who has been sitting still and using up 100 calories gets up and walks around, he doubles the demand for energy, or may actually treble it. It is not surprising, therefore, that he uses from 2500 to 3000 calories a day.

But muscular energy alone is not the important factor in fatigue.

A lecturer who talks for an hour burns of from 120 to 200 calories, and each one of those who sit still and listen to him burns up 100 calories. Yet they may feel exceedingly tired thereafter. This introduces the mental factor which is very important in human life.

The business man who works with a plan for a sales campaign burns up less energy while he is thinking than when he fiddles with the pencils on his desk. But his mental process will tire him more quickly.

It is impossible to discuss food values in terms of energy without realizing how much energy certain well-known foods supply. Since we seldom eat foods in quantities small enough to furnish one or two calories, dietary experts have estimated food values in 100 calorie portions.

Following are the amounts of some well-known foods which will yield 100 calories of energy:

Butter (nearly pure fat) about 1/2 ounce, or a heaping tablespoonful.
Sugar (pure carbohydrate), about 1 ounce, or 2 tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar.

Strictly lean meat (mostly protein and water), about 3 ounces.

Bread, about 1 1/3 ounces, or two average slices.

Any dry cereal, or flour or meal, about 1 ounce, or 3 tablespoonfuls.

Milk, about 5 ounces (2 1/2 of a glass).

Cheese, 4 1/2 ounce (about 1-inch cube).

Dry beans, 1 ounce.

Potatoes, 5 ounces (one fair-sized).

Bananas, 5 1/2 ounces, with skin, (one average-sized).

Apple, 7 ounces whole (one good-sized).

Orange, 9-10 ounce (one large, or two small).

Orange juice, 8 ounces (a full-sized glass).

Prunes, dry, whole, 1 1/3 ounces (four average-sized).

With All My Love

by Mary Raymond
Copyright NEA 1935

They were chatting like old friends when they mounted the steps of the Cameron home.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DANA WESTBROOK, born and reared abroad, comes to America after the death of her parents to make her home with her grandmother, whom she has never seen.

Old Mrs. CAMERON is embittered by loss of money and what she considers disgrace to the family name. Twenty-one years before Dana's mother came to America, she left her husband and an infant daughter, NANCY WALLACE, divorced by her husband, she married Westbrook, and their daughter, Dana, was born a year later.

When Dana arrives at the southern home of her grandmother, she is received cordially by her half-sister, but is greeted coldly by her aunt, MISS ELLEN CAREWE.

Mrs. Cameron shrewdly decides to capitalize her granddaughter's beauty and begins plans to introduce Dana to society. Nancy, who has taken little part in social life, hides her love for handsome, rich ROYCE MOORE. Nancy is the daughter because her beautiful younger sister is soon to meet him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
DANA, watching the retreating figure of her half-sister, came to one of her swift, intuitive decisions. "She's hilly. Every time you reach out toward her, you get pricked. But it isn't the kind of sting a sneaky person would give you. It's a forthright kind you don't mind so much. In spite of the fact that she dislikes me, I'm sure I'm going to like her."

Dana went into the house. "That you, Nancy?"

"It's Dana," the girl replied, her heart beating a little faster at the sound of her grandmother's voice. She wondered if she would ever become accustomed to the harsh, controlled tones and mirthless dark eyes.

"I wanted Nancy to do the marketing for me."

"She hasn't had time to get very far," Dana said. "Couldn't I take the car and pick her up? Then we could market together."

She spoke eagerly. It was lonely sitting about the old house with nothing to do. Marketing would be a diversion.

"Humph. Drive?"

"Yes, Ever since I was a little girl."

"Here's the car key. Wait—I'll write out a list."

A few minutes later Dana was driving down the long street under a canopy of branching elms and oaks.

The car was a dilapidated old model, but it ran. And it was nice to be rattling along on a nice, sunny day. Occasionally a pedestrian turned and followed the car with curious eyes.

"It's because I'm a stranger," Dana decided. Evidently, everybody in the town knew everybody else. How different from the cosmopolitan European cities. Youthfully Dana decided she didn't mind the stares; it added zest to a commonplace mission.

OVER the rise of the slope she would probably find Nancy, who was evidently a fast walker to have covered so much distance in so short a time.

But Nancy was not in sight as the car dropped down on the other side.

Dana stopped the car. Intersecting with the street over which she had come was another of very different appearance.

"Smart," was the word Dana used mentally. These homes evidently belonged to the wealthiest families of the town. The one on the corner, far back among its green acres, was a reproduction of an imposing English manor house. Ivy clung thickly to the brick walls and spiraled about its chimneys.

Dana turned the nose of the car in this direction. She would drive for some distance on this attractive thoroughfare and if she failed to see Nancy she would return home.

She drove rapidly, the road unwinding like a long white ribbon, and handsome homes marching past in picturesque review. The one she was passing now was an enormous structure, set high on a hill several hundred yards away. Its turreted tops gleamed brightly under the glare of the sun. A veritable woodland of trees and flowering shrubs had been rudely parted in the center of the grounds, permitting those passing by to glimpse the immense white stone residence.

But Dana was destined not to pass. There was an ominous explosion, the car swerved suddenly, and came to a violent stop.

"Damn!" Dana exclaimed. "Now, I'm in for it." She was thinking of her grandmother, who would be waiting for her groceries and would never understand why Dana had taken the prolonged drive which had ended in a puncture.

She looked about anxiously. No help in sight.

From her vantage position, through tall sprigs of Iron Dana had a clear view of the house, and it pleased her not at all. "A costly imitation of an English castle," she decided. Or was it French? But there was none of an old castle's charm. It was so obviously new and expensive; just a vulgar display of wealth.

A car stopped nearby and a young man leaped out and came forward.

"Have you sent for help?" he asked.

DANA liked his directness. Most men would have said, "Had a puncture?" or something like that. And, of course, the punctured tire was perfectly obvious.

She smiled. "I didn't know exactly how to go about it."

"That should be easily remedied," said the stranger. "I'll drive in and telephone for you. It will take sometime to get someone out to do the job. I'd offer to fix the puncture, only I'm really a dub at anything like that."

"I wouldn't have you ruin those beautifully creased trousers for worlds," Dana said. "I'd really enjoy the wait, if it weren't for my grandmother's groceries."

"Your grandmother?" There was a surprised inflection in his voice. "Aly grandmother, Mrs. Cameron?"

"Nancy's grandmother—why, I didn't know—" He broke off, embarrassed.

"You didn't know Mrs. Cameron had another granddaughter?" Dana supplied.

"Well, . . . it seems to me I did. . . . I thought she was abroad—in England or France."

"I've lived in both places. My father was an artist and we were always moving. I came here from Paris. I'm Dana Westbrook."

"I'm Ronald Moore."

The name meant nothing to Dana. She said, "I'm awfully glad you came along." Then, as realization dawned on her, "We haven't called a garage yet!"

Trial By Jury

with bare head and without his robes. Every Lord, when he gives his judgment in the case, will declare his opinion on his honor, "laying his right hand on his breast."

There will be very few seats for any outsiders, except counsel for the Crown and the accused. Scotch and Irish peers who have no seats in the House of Lords, minor peers, eldest sons of peers, 100 for members of the House of Commons and 80 for peeresses.

Right Dates to 9th Century
The term "to be tried by a jury of his peers" thus has a double significance in the case of a Lord who goes on trial and is one of the most ancient privileges in the history of Europe. It first appears during the reign of Charles the Bold, Roman Emperor and King of the West Franks back in the 9th century. In England it took written form in the famous Magna Carta exacted from King John by his barons at Runnymede in 1215. This document, often called the very foundation of English liberty, is held to have given peers a right to be judged by their fellow peers in the realm.

In the centuries that followed, it was a much debated subject, some more or less powerful kings ignoring it when it suited their purpose. The last modern case of the kind was in 1901 when the Earl Russell was tried by the House of Lords on a charge of bigamy.

It is asserted that in the next session of Parliament a number of peers will demand formal legislation putting an end to this kind of trial. This, not only because it gives peers a privilege other men and women do not enjoy, but also on account of the great expense. It is estimated Lord de Cliford's trial will cost upwards of $30,000. The bulk of this will have to be borne by the taxpayers of the county of Surrey where the alleged offense

Hope Boys Broadcast at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Harold Roberts and Kenneth Blevins of Hope, Len Edwards of Prescott, Solon Boyd and Roy May of Delight, are appearing three times daily on radio programs broadcast from station KSOO at Sioux Falls, S. D. They can be heard at 8:30 a. m. again at 11:45 a. m. and 3:45 p. m. They are appearing as the "Texas Rhythm Boys."

was committed.

Married Kate Merriek's Daughter
Lord de Clifford, who by profession is an engineer, excited great attention in 1926, when he was only 18, when he married the Miss Dolly Merriek, daughter of the late Mrs. Kate Merriek.

Mrs. Merriek was one of the best-known figures in London's night life. With a considerable family of children to bring up and educate, she started various night clubs and ran a number of the law. The charges most often were that she sold liquor without a license or that she sold it after permissible hours.

On a number of occasions she was sent to jail. Each time, afterward, she reopened a new night club. Most of those she founded were frequented by some of the best people in the gilded life of the great city. She made a great deal of money, in spite of her heavy fines and legal expenses, maintained a fine home in the swank Regents Park district, and gave her children a good education. Another of her daughters married the Earl of Kinnoull, who is now prominent in the Socialist ranks in the House of Lords and an active speaker for his party.

Ogrodowski in Demand
Speaking of Ogrodowski, the Pittsburgh Pirates want him badly, but can do no business with Branch Rickey.

"Ogrodowski is the only minor league catcher I know of who has much of a chance of making a go of it in the majors," declares Pie Traynor.

Traynor says that neither Tommy Padden, Earl Grace, nor Aubrey Epps throws well enough to help the Pirates to first place.

"Give the Pirates a first-class catcher and a big, strong pitcher and they'll hear from us," asserts Traynor. The boss of the Buccaneers points to the fact that Bush and Red Lucas have reached that stage of their career where they can give a club nothing more than a 50-50 break in victories and defeats.

Traynor says that the Pirates will be set everywhere except in the battery positions, even though he is unable to work the kink out of his right shoulder.

A slate for all state offices and a candidate to oppose U. S. Senator Joe T. Robinson may be announced at the session. No high state official has said he would attend the rally but all will be awaiting word of the business transacted.

The well-worn and often used promises of an economical state administration on a business-like basis are certain to be repeated but will play second fiddle to the questions enumerated.

The governor's race is expected to be the "muddiest" scramble of all with the retirement of Governor Futrell. Conservative observers see a race with five men competing. Other predictions range as high as a dozen. The formal announcements will start popping early next spring.

old, his son. Both were defeated in the election.

Unless Ramsey MacDonald is raised to the peerage a seat will have to be found for him in the House of Commons, and it was assumed in political circles a seat would also be found for his son, through a bye-election.

James Anthony Collins believes that Charley Belbert will do practically all the third basing for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1936, with the redoubtable Pepper Martin switching his activities to right field.

Owner Sam Breadon has announced that Martin would return to center.

"But just what is Frank Frisch going to do with Terry Moore?" asks Ripper Collins. "Martin can't begin to play center field with Moore, and Terry was leading our club in hitting when we returned from our final swing through the east. Moore is the fastest man in baseball, and is destined to become one of the great stars of the game."

Collins, who plays so much first base for the Red Birds, explains that Martin is definitely through as an infielder. Pepper's injured throwing arm brought about wild throws that cost the Cardinals a half dozen precious games in 1935.

"Martin is a remarkable ball player with a grand spirit, but he doesn't know how to take care of himself, explains Collins. "He drove a midget auto racer through the streets of St. Louis when he should have been doctoring his arm."

Collins believes that Outfielders Jack Rothrock and Ernie Orsatti will be disposed of. King, who came up late last season, is a year or two away, in his opinion.

Frisch Out as Regular
Collins says Frisch as only a part-time player in 1936, with Burgess Whitehead taking the old Fordham Flash's place at second base.

distribution and neighborliness for the solving of these problems is not God's job but ours. He has provided. Thanks should be to Him. And we turn to that Old Book, which is as old as yesterday, as new as today and will never be forgotten for the following: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me, in the presence of mine enemies; thou annointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."—May your Thanksgiving day be a happy one!

Miss Eva Owen left Friday for a visit with relatives and friends in Temple, Texas.

Mrs. Snome Simms Bunn of Los Angeles, Calif., who is spending the winter with relatives in Little Rock, arrived Friday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Briant and other old friends and relatives in Columbus and Texarkana.

Mrs. Christine Basham of the Soil Erosion Department left Saturday to spend the week end with home folks in Texarkana.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Young were hosts on Friday evening at a most delightful duck dinner at their home on South Harvey street. The damask covered dining table was beautifully appointed and had for its central decoration a huge flat bowl of yellow chrysanthemums and baby breath flanked by yellow tapers in silver holders. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lewis, Mrs. Johnnie McCabe and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Young.

Miss Edith Harvey will spend the week end with relatives and friends in Arkadelphia.
Mrs. Charles Haynes has returned from Hot Springs where she attended the General U. D. C. convention.
The Friday Music club motored to the beautiful home of Mrs. George Ware at the Experiment Station for its November meeting. With Mrs. J. C. Carlton presiding, activities of the Friday Music club for the past ten days were discussed. Plans were completed for the coming of Angelo Cortese, America's foremost harpist, who will be presented by the club in concert at the city hall on December 3. The Christmas music presentation was also discussed, after which the following program was given: "Program Music and Past Romanists," Mrs. Fred Harrison, Piano, La petit and blanc Jacques," Ibert, by Mrs. Edwin Stewart, Piano, "Scenes from Childhood," Schuman, by Mrs. John Wellborn, Piano duet, "In The Hall of the Mountain King," Grieg, by Messdames Carlton and Stewart. The next meeting will be held on December 13th with Misses Mary Louise Keith and Harriett Story as hostesses.

On Thursday morning, 31 Arkansas members of the U. D. C. who were attending the convention in Hot Springs complimented Mrs. Earl Hodges of New York City, a former Arkansian, with a breakfast in the main dining room of the Arlington hotel. Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, immediate past president of the state convention and general chairman of the general convention U. D. C. presided. Notable among those present were Mrs. Lora Goolsby of Fort Smith, Mrs. Homer F. Sloan of Marked Tree and Mrs. Samuel Preston Davis of Little Rock. Adding beauty to this delightful affair were Mrs. Lowthorp's attractive pages—Our hat is off to Mrs. Lowthorp.

On Thursday morning of the coming week we will gather in our accustomed places of worship to review the things the Lord has done for us during the year that is drawing to its close. We have evidences that God has been good to us, even in greater measure than we had any right to ask or expect Him to be, for we have much to be thankful for, in spite of everything that we have done or left undone, there is food enough for all, there is clothing enough for all, there is shelter enough for all, but gathering,

Joan Crawford at Saenger Sunday

With Brian Aherne in "I Live My Life"—on Screen Three Days

A visitor on the "I Live My Life" set might have written home a letter on how temperamental Joan Crawford is. The picture is at the Saenger Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

While cameras whirled, she stormed through a drawing room, smashing lamps, vases, flower pots, clocks—anything in sight, including an Adrian-designed wedding gown which was torn to ribbons. All this for a dramatic scene in the new picture. To add the proper note of fury, Director W. S. Van Dyke murmured, just before the scene began, "I'll bet money you can't do it in one 'take'!" "Five dollars," Joan flashed, and went into it. She won.

Music

Notes of Interest to Music Lovers of Southwest Arkansas

The Part of the Club in Music Education.

In the matter of musical education as it can be carried on by music clubs, let us consider how it can be done. The majority of members in a majority of clubs have had college music courses and have a foundation of the various aspects of music. For these the music clubs must provide the means by which this knowledge will be enriched by a familiarity with great musical literature. Programs should be planned to fit a definite pattern so that each season will add a new chapter to those already learned.

The educational influence of the music club may be extended beyond the actual membership. Indeed, it must be in order to fulfill its mission. Its programs should be shared with others, not only associate members but, occasionally, with the public. It should provide a musical outlet for every type of musician by developing choral groups and instrumental ensembles. It should assist the school authorities with their music program. It should plan a Music Week which will be a real festival and which will use every musical resource of your community. It must assist in the presentation of artists to provide the opportunity to hear the best performances of the best music. It should advertise the fine radio programs and the musical motion pictures which are developing so rapidly. Wherever it is possible, perhaps in co-operation with a little theater group, operatic productions must be fostered. In other words, the music club should be the musical center about which your community revolves. See to it that it is.—National Music Club Magazine.

WHAT?—MEAN TO SAY YOU NEVER SAW OLSON RASSELL, AN' YOU GOT YOUR MAN SIGNED TO MEET HIM TUESDAY NIGHT?

IT AINT TOO LATE, YET—SEND IN A NOTE THAT YOUR BOY GOT SOLTED BY A PIANO TRUCK, AN' IT'LL BE A MONTH BEFORE HE'S OUT OF TH' CAST!

YEH—IF HE REALLY WAS, IT'D BE A TICKLE, COMPARED TO TH' CRACK-UP FROM OLSON!—I SAW HIM TAKE ON A 240-POUND STEVEDORE, AN' HE COMPRESSED HIM INTO A MIDGET!

HM—SO? WELL, BOYS, I HAVE JUST PLACED A $1000 WAGER THAT MY MAN WINS!

HE MEANS A COUPLE OF CIGARS, BET WITH HIS GROCER

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Following the Leaders

H'LO, BOOTS! SAY, HOWS ABOUT DROPPIN' IN AT TH' TAVERN FOR A SNACK?

DON'T BE SILLY, THAT'S ON THE WEST SIDE

TIME—LATE AFTERNOON PLACE—STADIUM EXIT (WORM'S EYE-VIEW)

11-23

ALLEY OOP

GOSH, GUZ—POOR FOOZY MUSTA HADDA NAWFUL TIME WHILE WE WERE GONE

HAW! YOU SAID IT, OOP! HE DID HAVE AN AWFUL TIME, YOU CAN TAKE IT FROM ME!

WELL, SAY—WHATCHA GONNA DO? I AINT GONNA DO NOthin' 'LESSEN, FELLA—GONNA DO IM GONNA GIVE YOU A 'BOUT WHAT LITTLE LESSON IN TH' KING BUSINESS—

DO? I AINT GONNA DO NOthin' 'LESSEN, FELLA—GONNA DO IM GONNA GIVE YOU A 'BOUT WHAT LITTLE LESSON IN TH' KING BUSINESS—

WASH TUBBS

JOHN SKEET, YOU DUMBELLS, TUK HIS CHANCE ON A RAFT IN MID-OCEAN, RUTHER THAN FACE A TRIAL FER MURDER.

1935 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

ARE YOU SURE YOU CAN'T FIND THEM?

I'VE LOOKED HIGH AND LOW... I HAVEN'T A PAIR OF PANTS IN THE HOUSE!!

THAT'S STRANGE! I JUST GOT THREE PAIRS OF YOUR CORDUOYS BACK FROM THE CLEANERS AND LAID THEM CAREFULLY IN YOUR DRAWER!

THEY'RE NOT THERE, NOW!!

IT WASN'T OVER AN HOUR AGO THAT I PUT THEM AWAY! HAVEN'T YOU ANY OLD ONES YOU COULD WEAR?

EVEN THE OLD ONES HAVE DISAPPEARED!!

POSSIBLY YOUR DAD KNOWS SOMETHING ABOUT THEM! CALL IN TO HIM AND ASK HIM!

HAVE EITHER OF YOU SEEN ANYTHING OF MY PANTS?

THE NEWFANGLES (Mom'n Pop)

I HAVE TBE VERY CAREFUL ABOUT MY MEALS, THE LAST PLACE I STAYED, THEY SERVED S'NUCH CANNED FISH THAT MY STOMACH ROSE AND FELL WITH THE TIDE

WELL, EVERYTHING WE SERVE HERE IS STRICTLY FRESH!

FRESH! MAN! IFN HE EVAH KNOW'D WHAT AH HAS HID IN DIS ASH CAN—TSH-TSH-TSH!

OUT OUR WAY

By WILLIAMS

WHEN THE BULL O' TH' WOODS HIRED THAT GUY, HE TOLD HIM HE HAD A FINE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK HIS WAY UP! AN' HE'S BEEN ON THE SAME JOB EVER SINCE HE STARTED, PUSHIN' THAT TRUCK AROUND, YOU'D THINK IT WOULD BREAK HIS SPIRIT

HIS SPIRIT? I'D THINK IT WOULD BREAK HIS BACK! THE BULL WASN'T SO FAR OFF, THAT GUY PUSHES A HEAVY LOAD FER AWHILE AND THEN STOPS TO GET THE KINKS OUTA HIS SYSTEM. THAT'S WHEN HE WORKS HIS WAY UP—SO HE KIN PUSH SOME MORE, AND WORK HIS WAY UP AGAIN.

UPS AND DOWNS

By CRANE

AN' IF I CRACK DOWN ON HIM, ALL HIS FRIENDS'LL BE MAD—SO, BY DOIN' NOthin', NOBODY'LL HAVE ANYTHING ON ME, AN' EVERYTHING'LL BE JAKE, ALL ROUND!

WELL, FER! SAY, THIS KING BUSINESS IS COMPLICATED, AINT IT?

11-23

By HAMLIN

JOHN SKEET SKIPS!

GUINEA-PIG MAN DISAPPEARS FROM ISLAND, TWO BARRELS ALSO MISSING, BELIEVED THAT HE LEFT ON A RAFT.

MAYBE HE WAS AFRAID THE WATER SUPPLY WOULD GIVE OUT.

MAYBE HE WENT FOR HELP.

BALONEY! I TELL YE, HE WAS SKEERED OF ME AN' EASY, HE KNOWED WE SUSPECTED HIM OF KILLIN' THE BIGGER BROTHERS, AN' HAD A GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

EASY

ROY

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

IN THE
ENEMY
CAPTOL:

YOUR MAJESTY, NIKKATEENA BEGS
FOR PEACE. THEIR AMMUNITION IS EXHAUSTED.

HUMPH! DO
WE HAVE PLENTY?

PLENTY,
YOUR MAJESTY.

THEN LET OUR ANSWER BE
THE ROAR OF CANNON! CRUSH
THE DOGS! WIPE THEM OFF THE EARTH!

SUDDENLY, EASY APPEARS OVER THE ENEMY'S INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT.

BOOM!
BOOM!
BOOM!
WHAM!
WHAM!
WHAM!

GLORY BE! WE GOT OUT JUST IN TIME.

JUMP, YOU FOOL!
HE'S DIVING AT US!

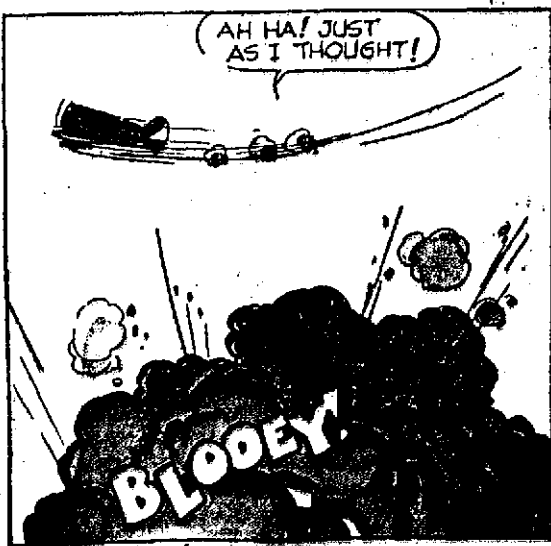

BRING HIM DOWN!
10,000 RUBLES TO THE
MAN WHO GETS HIM!

WUP! ANTI-AIRCRAFT!
MUST BE SOMETHING UNDER THOSE SHEDS THAT THEY DON'T WANT ME TO HIT.

AH HA! JUST AS I THOUGHT!

AN HOUR
LATER.

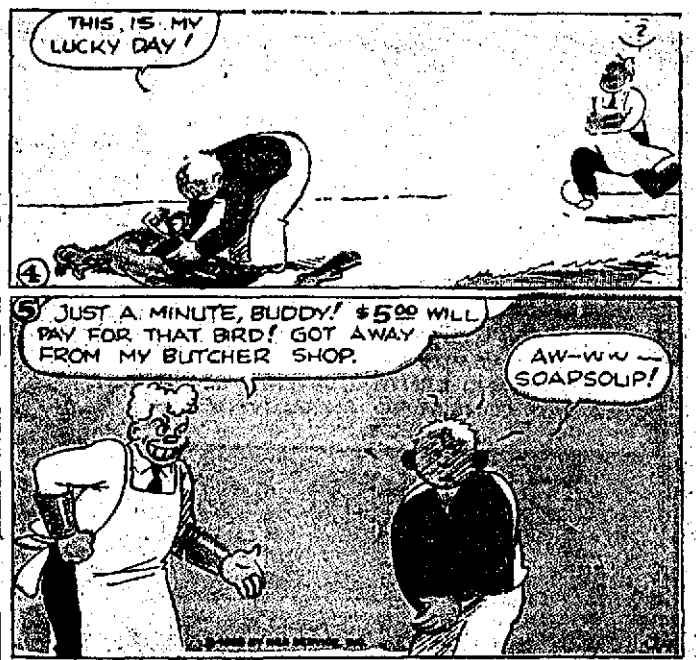

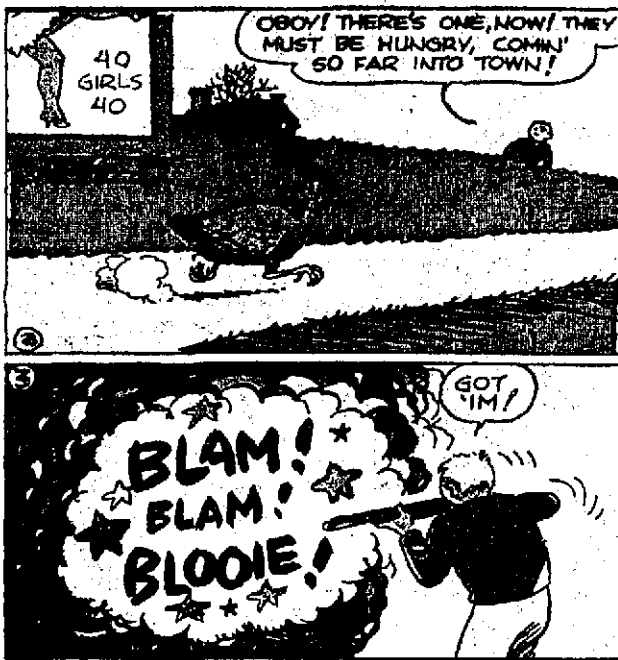

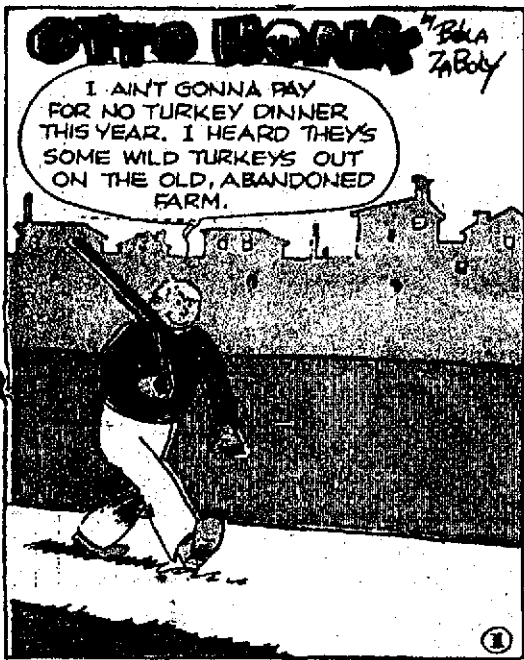

GUESS VOT HAPPENED!
DER ENEMY HASS AGREED
TO PEACE!

NO SURPRISE TO ME, SUH.
I FIGURED THAT SINCE WE CAN'T FIGHT WITHOUT GUN-POWDER, NEITHER CAN THE ENEMY.

SO I BLEW UP THEIR MUNITIONS
FACTORY, A MUNITIONS DUMP, AND
A MUNITIONS TRAIN. AND IF YOU
DON'T MIND, SUH, I'LL HELP MYSELF
TO A FEW O' THESE MEDALS, FOR SAVING THE DAY.

OUT OUR WAY

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

GREAT ANT-EATER
LIVES IN SWAMPY FOREST REGIONS OF SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA... ON A DIET CONSISTING EXCLUSIVELY OF INSECTS.

THE OFFSPRING ARE BORN SINGLY AND SPEND THEIR EARLY CHILDHOOD RIDING ABOUT ON THE BACKS OF THEIR PARENTS.

THE POWERFUL CURVED CLAWS ARE USED TO RIP OPEN THE HARD CLAY HOMES OF WHITE ANTS, WHICH THE ANT-EATER LAPS UP WITH HIS TWO-AND-A-HALF-FOOT TONGUE.

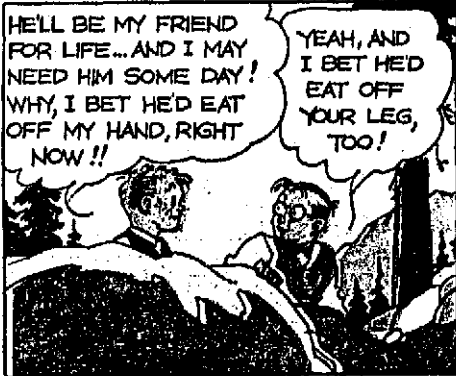

HE HASN'T A SINGLE TOOTH IN HIS HEAD, AND HIS MOUTH IS NO LARGER THAN A KEY HOLE.

JAGUARS FIND HIS FLESH PALATABLE, BUT THEY SELDOM ATTACK HIM MORE THAN ONCE, FOR HE IS AN EXPERT AT RIPPING HIS FOES TO PIECES WHILE HOLDING THEM TIGHTLY IN HIS POWERFUL ARMS.

THE GREAT BUSHY TAIL SERVES A DOUBLE PURPOSE! IT PROVIDES A SUNSHADE IN SUMMER, AND A BLANKET IN WINTER.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

OOOH! WOTTA NIGHT! I NEVER WUZ SO GLAD T'SEE TH' SUN COME UP! BRRRR! HEREAFTER, I LEAVE TH' TREES 'N' TH' BIRDS, AN' HOLE UP IN A NICE, QUIET, DRY CAVE!

AWRIGHT, DINNY - LE'S GIT GOIN'! THIS IS GONNA BE OUR BUSY DAY - WE GOTTA FIND US SOME PLACE T'LIVE!

HAH! HERE'S WHERE WE OUGHTA FIND JUS' WHAT WE'RE LOOKIN FOR -

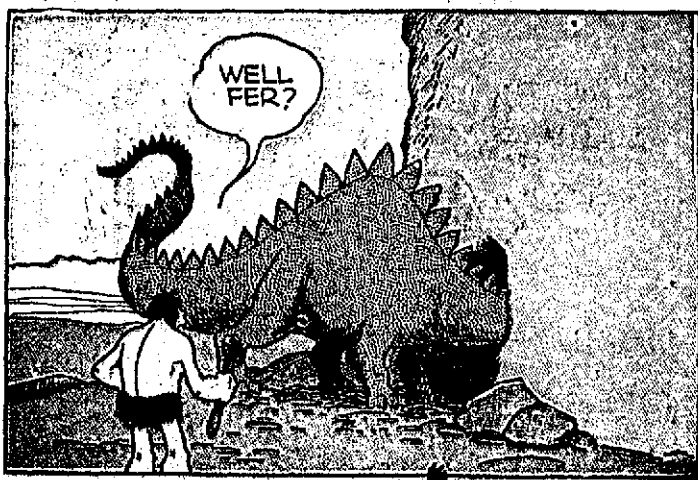

THIS IS A SWELL CAVE - NOW, IF IT LOOKS AS GOOD ON TH' INSIDE AS IT DOES ON TH' OUTSIDE...

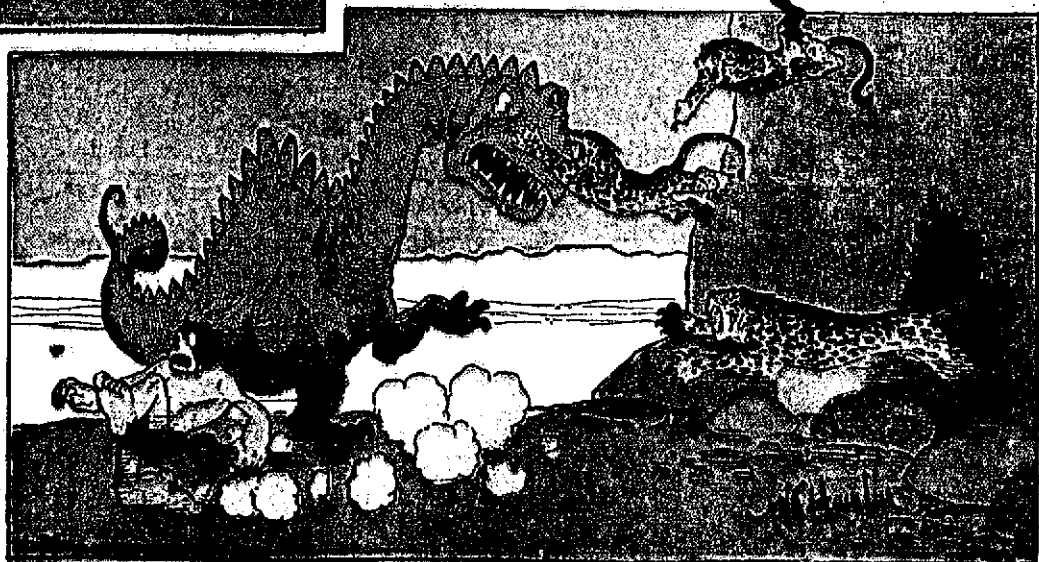

HEY!

SAY, YOU HORN-SNOURED, SNAGGLE-TOOTHED OL' YAWP, WHAT'S TH' BIG IDEA?!
